INSPIRED BY LOVE & GRIEF

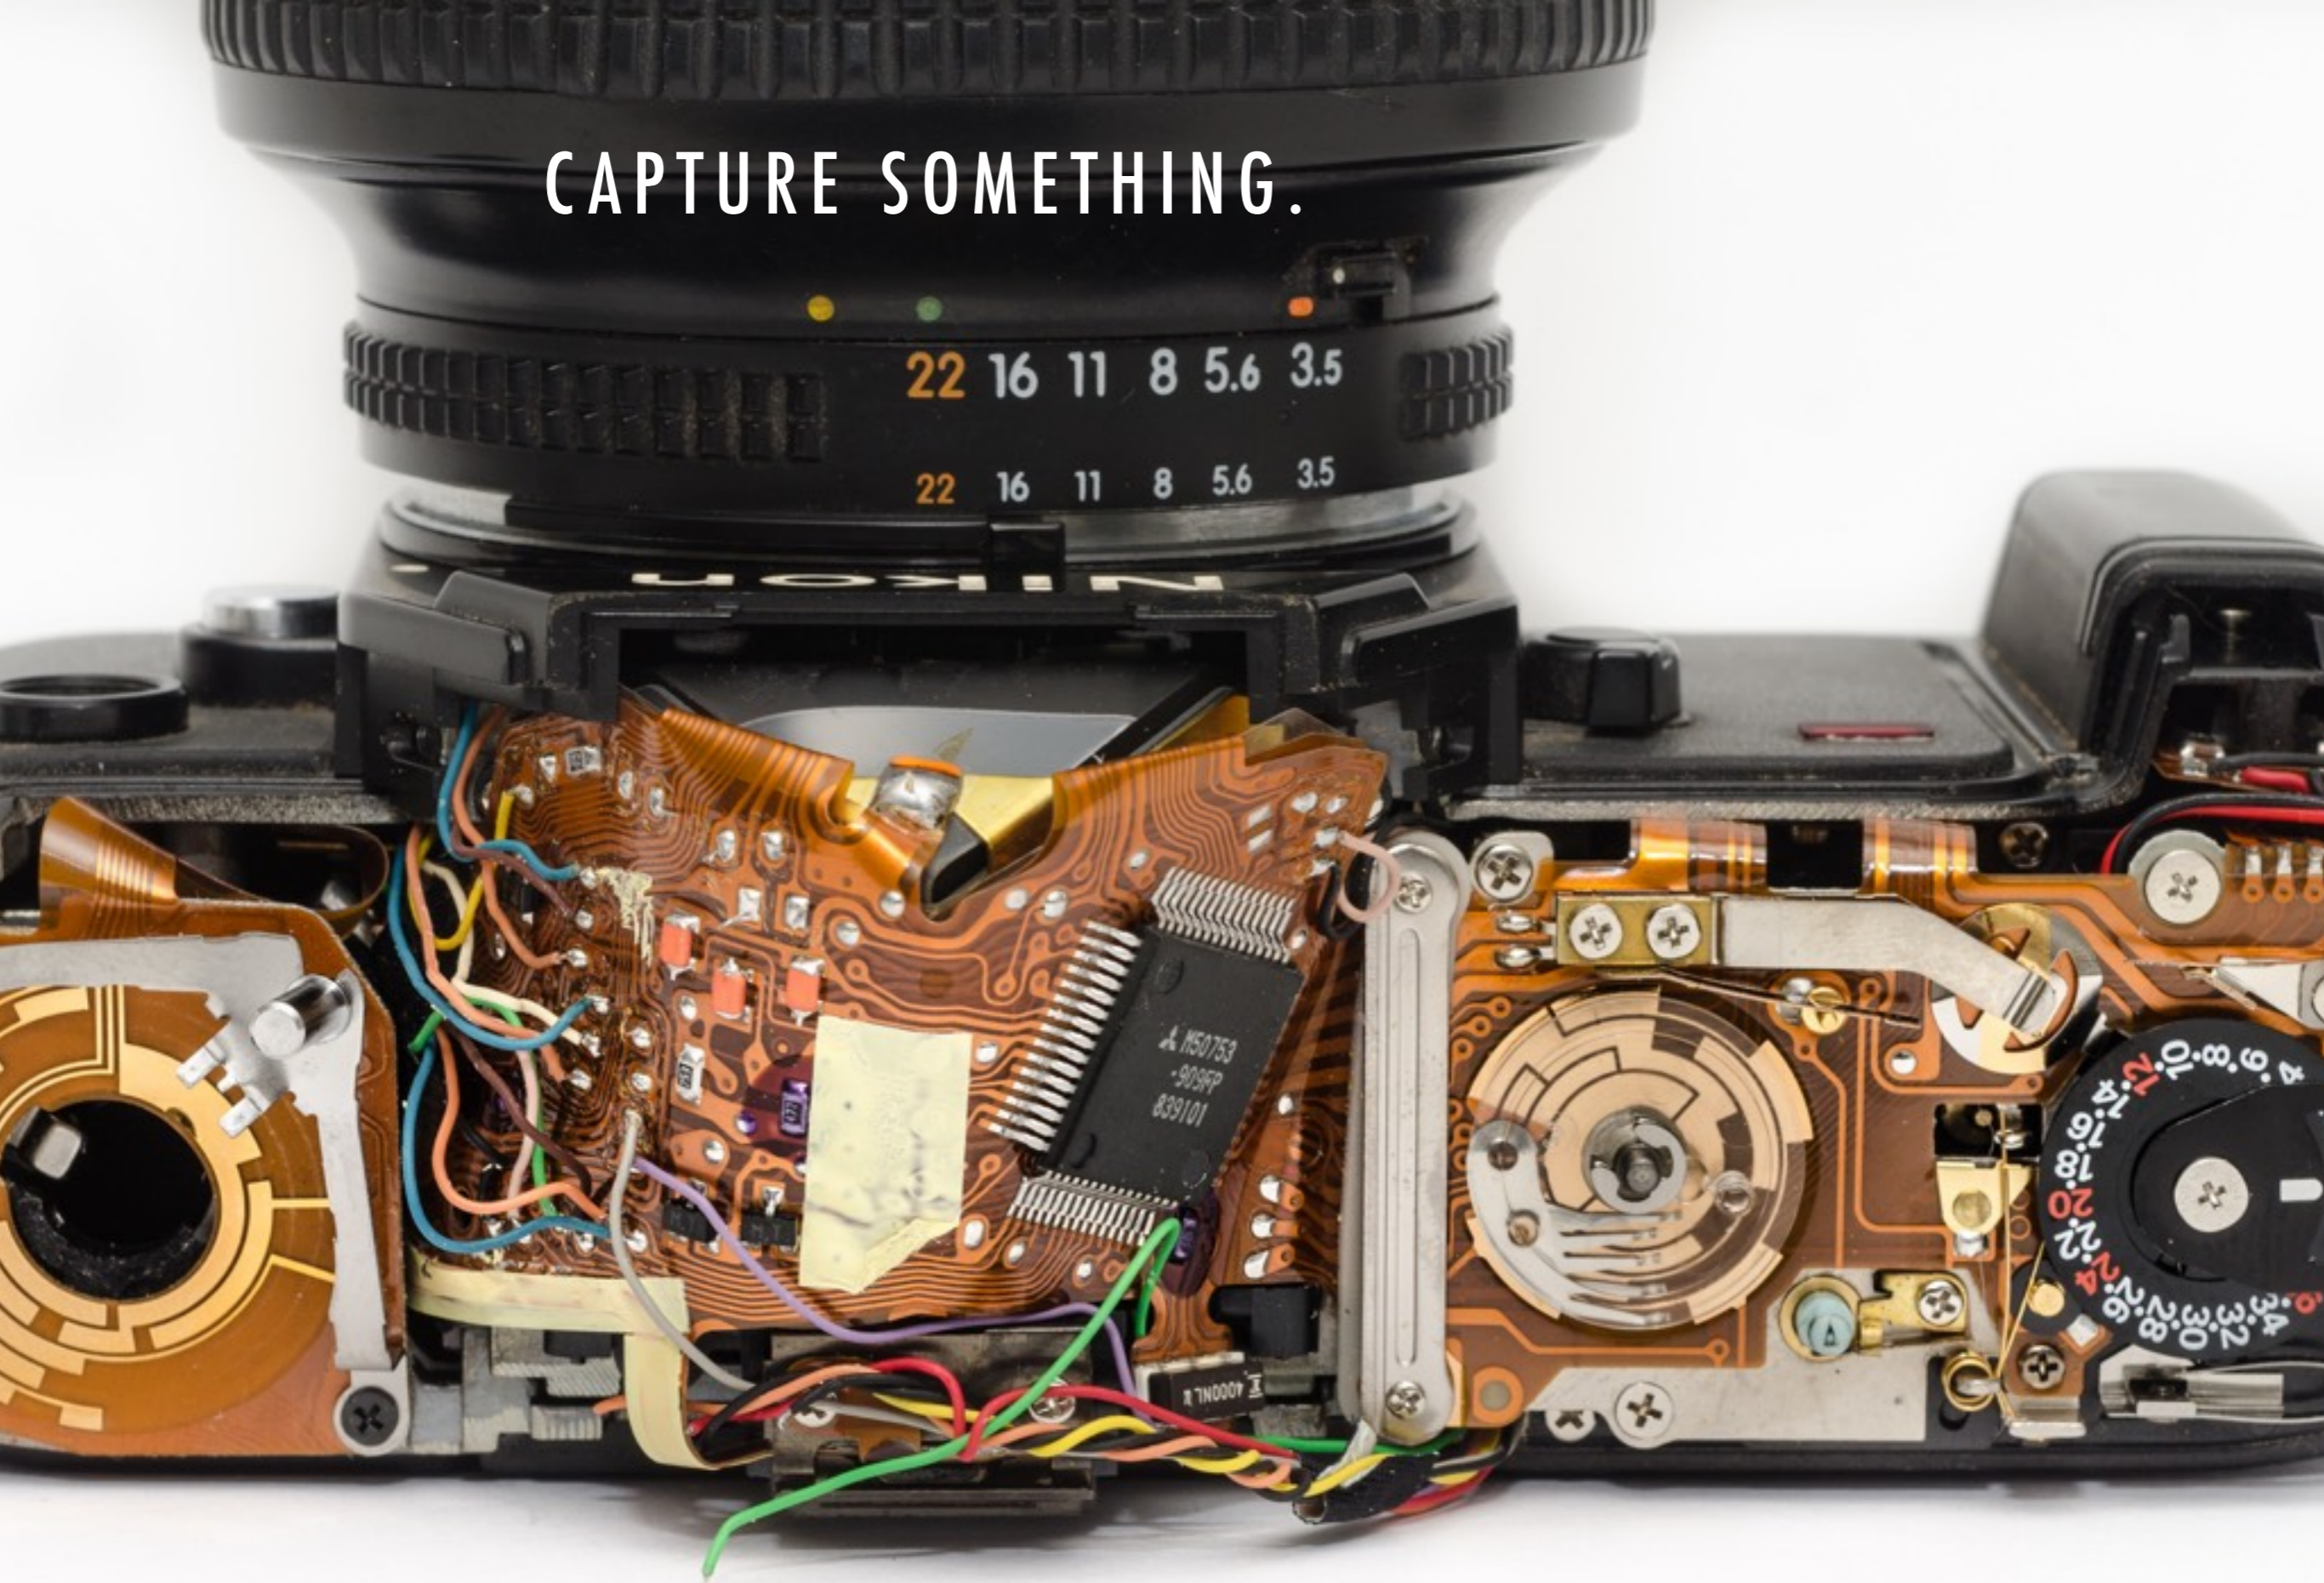

FOR MY FATHER (A POET), MY MOTHER (AN INSPIRATION), MY HUSBAND (A MUSICIAN), & MY BEST FRIEND (A GODDESS)

The life of any artist is a collaboration of the people who were there along the way to inspire, to support, to challenge, and to teach. There have been many people in my life who have made it possible to be creative. I wish I could eloquently manage to profess my love and devotion to all of them, but I really want to go eat some ice cream, so you'll just have to imagine that I've already done that.

However, sometimes the creative life is a lonely one. If you feel like you don't have anyone who really believes in you, then just keep doing what you're doing in your creative pursuits, and eventually the people around you will be able to see what has been shimmering around in your head. I do ask one thing: please make sure your art does not injure anyone else.

And I must also thank you for letting me be a part of your creative aspirations. I hope you find this little project of mine helpful.

CAPTURE SOMETHING.

HOW TO USE THIS BOOK

FEEL FREE TO IGNORE THESE INSTRUCTIONS & MAKE YOUR OWN CREATIVE RULES.

I promise I will keep this short, because you have writing to do. I have been where you are, staring at an empty page. Procrastinating actually writing by looking for more writing prompts. But there is no time to waste “reading” a book that will talk abstractly about finding inspiration within your daily life. Instead, I’ve paired juxtapositions of phrases and images that will spark your imagination so you can immediately start writing. If you care, there will be more about me and my process at the end of this book, but I’d rather you just start writing!

The directions are easy. Flip to any page and find a phrase or image that speaks to you. Let the idea soak in for a few seconds and try to form images and maybe even a story around that glimmer of inspiration. Don’t worry about your form or spelling; just write. All of the perfection part of writing needs to come in the editing stage, and you’re not there yet. (And it’s hard to get to editing if you don’t have words on the page.)

If you get stuck, flip to another page. Mix and match images. Ask yourself questions. You’ll find snippets of information mixed in with some creative support that I have found helpful in my own creative aimlessness. Just remember there’s no wrong way to write, and everything can be fixed during the editing process. Don’t fear the words or where they will take you!

WHERE IT ALL COMES TOGETHER

EXPERIMENT!

Every choice you make about capitalization, punctuation, placement, emphasis, font size, alignment, and style changes the emphasis and translates your meaning into something new. Make some decisions about how you want the feeling and the interpretation of your words to develop.

POEMS

LIKE THE ACHE OF THE SAND

LOVERS MEET

with plunging discretion

solemn gestures of disguise

wade through the stately oath of the surf

in nocturnal

acquiescence

inaudible ebb

blissful descent

droop of a breathless moan

sway of the lamenting

indecenty of a black moon

reverberation will wane

and evasion will be soundless.

POEMS

ASK ME IF I CARE

DEHYDRATE THE CAPILLARY

and press the shade into a knot with the marble fingers of decline.

Laundry echoes
within the sweltering tumble.

The vertical evaporation of her synthetic calm bounces with used dryer sheets.

Her comfortable bouquet of loneliness might one day elope, if only she could conceal every storm of avoidance, clever lapses of mistaken moments,

perpendicular and round

like clanging quarters, productive fabrications among tranquil fabrics.

Am I not dreaming?

Harmonious master functioning as composer of her nightmares, blinking permissions and reflections,

Glistening indiscretions.

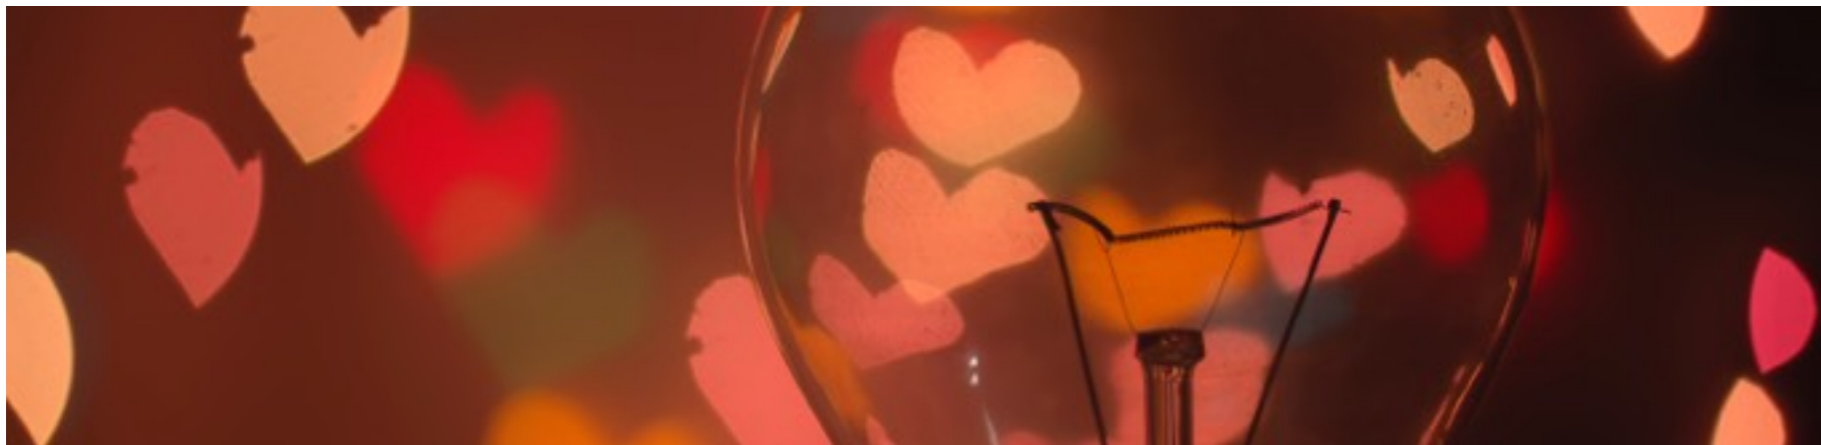

This methodical holiday.

The week's rumpled departure prowls toward something more hollow, tarnished with the slant of metallic spirits.

An impetuous wobble in search of resonance.

POEMS

RE: LOVE

I crush against your sensitive and meticulous acceptance.

We are in a perpetual formation of something beyond the magical musicality — a vigilant and attentive interpretation of what it means to trust.

I wholeheartedly conspire to be your promising connotation, your enthusiastic relevance, and your endless companion.

POEMS

THE INSTINCT OF GRIEF IS RATHER UNFORTUNATE

A LOVE POEM TO AN OBJECT

without limitations

Relaxed inertia.

Your light will influence my musical future even as I grieve the composed scratchings of layered remedy.

Until I gradually persevere into a certain stability of permanence.

THE TRANQUIL CLOTH THAT POOLS

at the mountaintop of your progressive defiance

Gradual zeppelins stretch into restless triumph and become authority.

Spin and wager my heart
beyond the lull into the strengthened shade of home.

I will forever be rooted in the calm of music.

I UNBURDEN MY FEARS TO

conspicuous guitar chords

Drums thrum through my torso in endless relief

when I need to sob.
Lyrics establish an anonymous connection to my infinite fears of uncontrollable misfortune.

Synthetic necessities of unleashed melodies.
The absolute may be unknown.

POEMS

CARELESSLY DANCE IN UNDISCOVERED LIBRARIES

MONOTONY IN MOTION

Isolation is abundant.

As we all dwell behind deadbolts
— desolate philosophy of security —

let us discover the relevance of what is nearby:
so many other lonesome people
in the vicinity

imprisoned in the consistent any supposed place of protection is temporary saunter out into the sluggish world awaken the drowsy with your voice embellish against the advantage of nonchalance.

BECOME DEFINITE.

POEMS

PRESCIENCE

BIRDS IN FLIGHT, SWOOPING ABOVE THE SHADOWS OF MIGHT.

OBSTACLES COLLIDE AWAY IN SUCH ROAMING FREEDOM. FLING THE HOPES OF THE WOUNDED OVER THE BARRIERS.

The expectations of what one might do fluctuate above pastures of barricades, damaged by monsoons of bullets. Puncture the tempest with a final plunge of pursuit.

Sway against the glimmer of a premonition that these battles will never cease to torment the already mutilated. Cast more harmful nonsense at the famished. Hasten the starved through rigorous hurricanes of background checks and apathetic rules and regulations. But those who are comparatively satiated, let them stroll through and evaluate the bustle and scurry of hungry mice dashing to hide from the hawks above, rampant and haphazard in their hurling and heaving against the invisible gravity of conscience.

LAURA B. GINSBERG

RANDOM BOOK EDITOR / AUTHOR OF TINY THINGS / ABSTRACT PAINTER / NOVICE SKETCH ARTIST / BLOSSOMING MUSICIAN / CREATIVE PISCES

I spend most of my days staring at either half-blank pages or half-blank canvases. I am a painter who loves to read and a writer who loves to craft. I attempt to design book projects that help people explore their own creativity and purpose in life. I procrastinate working on my novel series by coming up with art projects, such as this book. I live in New Jersey with my husband and stare at the ocean as often as I can.

My editorial background includes more than 20 years of experience in magazine and book publishing. I have won awards for my magazine work, and I've edited best sellers at a small imprint of a large publishing company, I've also helped individual authors self-publish.

FOR MY DAD – RANDY M. BRASWELL

BRILLIANT POET / HIPPIE DRUMMER / SUDOKU EXTRAORDINAIRE / BILLIARD CHAMPION / CROSSWORD WIZARD / PINBALL MAGICIAN / ENIGMA

Years ago, before I was in high school, I found my dad's old high school notebooks in some boxes in the attic, and his words were full of poetry and scratchings about music, drums, smoking, and love. I read some of them and was amazed. He never really talked about poetry, though he did often talk about books and how I should read more Vonnegut. He did crossword puzzles in pen. He tried to teach me the drums, though I could never really grasp the magic.

Those notebooks stayed hidden until last year, right after Dad was diagnosed with Stage 4 lung cancer. I was home, in Alabama, helping mom stay distracted from the diagnosis by cleaning out old boxes in the closets of what used to be my room, I took them back to New Jersey with me a few weeks later and started transcribing them when I had to be in my real world and at work instead of with the two of them. Oddly, it seemed to me that our two writing voices were very similar, and I started writing poetry again, after a 17-year break.

When he passed in October, I lost a piece of myself that will never be filled, but I also have found a connection with him that we never had in this life. I feel like my new poetic voice is part of some conversation that the two of us are still sharing, littered with music and brilliance, and because he would never have published his poems and thoughts, I will,

UNTITLED IN BLUE INK

WRITTEN BY RANDY M. BRASWELL

AT THE CRACK BETWEEN DAY AND NIGHT

I sit blowing smoke at the moon and waiting for the music to stop.

Look for me in your mind,
and I count the days
till darkness shall leave our hearts and the summer brings sunshine and happiness.

MY PROCESS

IT HAS BEEN A WANDERING ADVENTURE, FOR SURE...

There were definitely naps involved. Magic. Randomness. I needed a spark, so I did what most writers do, and I read books about writing. I found POEMCRAZY by Susan Goldsmith Woolridge, and she described an exercise that prompted me to destroy a thesaurus or two that I found after scouring thrift store shelves. I tore out the pages and cut them into columns, making something like bookmarks of beautiful words. I then created word pools of the words that spoke to me from those bookmarks. And as I was writing down words, they would cling to each other in new ways, and I managed to form some sentences that I thought to be poetic.

Then came Poetry Month, and I resigned myself to finishing 30 in 30, and writing 30 poems in 30 days through the month of April. With my word pools already created, the poems formed, day after day, and I was very productive in my writing in a way I hadn't been before.

Then what? Came May. As I read through my poems and tried to edit them, I realized that I was gravitating toward certain phrases and sentences. I started highlighting and organizing. And I wanted to craft a book of poetry, but something wasn't fully fitting together, and then I had the idea of adding images. And then whole new poetic ideas starting forming. My book editing mindset kicked in, and now you have this. I hope it helps you as much as it helped me.
